HEADS TOGETHER—Former President Truman and Adlai Stevenson, twice Democrat's candidate for president, get their heads together at a Democratic fund-raising dinner at Washington, D.C., Saturday. The occasion marked the sendoff for the 1958 congressional election campaign. Party bigwigs from all over the country were on hand to hear both Truman and Stevenson whale away at the Republicans.

Former Counsel Called 'Unmitigated Liar'

Lawyer From Miami Attacks Schwartz

WASHINGTON (AP)—Thurman A. Whiteside, Miami lawyer, denounced Bernard Schwartz as "an unmitigated liar" today for having connected him with a television channel applicant and for suggesting he passed money to a Federal Communications Commission member.

Whiteside, testifying under oath before a special House investigation subcommittee, accused Schwartz, dismissed committee counsel, of withholding information from the group.

He said Schwartz knew there was a long record of loan transactions between Whiteside and Richard A. Mack going back five years before Mack became a member of the FCC.

Schwartz told the committee earlier in its hearing that Whiteside had turned over at least $2,650 to Mack. Schwartz raised a question whether this was intended to influence Mack's vote in the contest for Miami TV channel 10. Both Mack and Whiteside had described the money as loans, Schwartz added.

Whiteside said Schwartz had further testified Whiteside was employed as an attorney by National Airlines or its subsidiary, Public Service Television, Inc., which won the contest for the Miami channel.

Whiteside said Schwartz knew this "was untrue prior to the time he gave his testimony."

"To that extent he bears false witness and is an unmitigated liar," the Miami attorney told the subcommittee in deliberate tones.

The subcommittee has been inquiring about alleged pressures on the FCC in behalf of various applicants for TV Channel 10 in Miami. The study is part of the House group's investigation to determine whether the federal regulatory agencies are carrying out the intent of Congress in creating them.

The name of Whiteside has bobbed up all through the hearings on Channel 10. He has been described as one who worked on behalf of Public Service Television, Inc., a subsidiary of National Airlines.

An FCC examiner recommended in March 1955 that the Miami channel be given to A. Frank Kattentime, Miami Beach radio station operator. By a 4-2 decision in February 1957, the FCC granted the channel to Public Service, one of four applicants for the TV license now described as worth millions.

The 60-day sentence was imposed for stealing the radiators and the defendant will be confined until his 18th birthday. The 30-day sentence was for receiving the stolen radiators.

Robert Beatty, 19, of East Liverpool, who also admitted taking the radiators, will have a hearing before County Judge Luther Donahoe sometime today.

Judge Louis Tobin deferred final sentence of the two boys involved in the robberies till Thursday, giving the sheriff's office more time to check out their stories.

Accused of Conducting 'Fear' Campaign

GOP Lashes Out At Harry Truman

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republicans accused former President Truman today of conducting a "fear" campaign they said could bring about an economic depression.

Truman's Saturday night broadcast against the "economic misrule" he said had produced a Republican recession was assailed by leading GOP senators as a disservice to effort to slow the business downturn and to lift employment.

Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.) said that this is not a period when "men who have been in high places can afford to ignore their responsibilities."

Citing income and employment statistics, Wiley said the country is not going to the dogs.

"But if the people are going to continue to be told that everything is haywire they are going to get in a mental condition where they will stop spending and then anything could happen," he said. "What Harry Truman is doing is creating fear of the worst kind."

Sen. Francis Case (R-SD) agreed in a separate interview, while nearly a score of other Republicans issued weekend statements criticizing various parts of Truman's speech at a $100-a-plate dinner.

The statements used such words as irresponsible, cynical, untrue, demagogic and reckless.

But Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.) said he agrees with Truman's statements that the country is "tired of being bamboozled by the Republicans" and is likely to give the Democrats sweeping victories in this year's congressional races and in the 1960 presidential contest.

"The big issue in this year's campaign is spuds and not Sputniks," Mansfield said in an interview. "If the people don't have the spuds, there won't be any more Sputniks as far as we are concerned."

Truman said that the results of five years of Republican White House rule could be added up in five million or more unemployed, millions more working part time, increasing bankruptcies, neglected school programs, overcrowded colleges and hospitals and highways in need of rebuilding.

Adlai E. Stevenson, who spoke to one section of the double-header dinner said that five years of Republican rule had been "stained by heavy failure in many areas—the excesses of McCarthyism, the disintegration of our alliances, the loss of confidence in us abroad, the decay in our military position and now the decline in our economic vitality."

Truman implied that if the Democrats were returned to power, the country could be assured of prosperity.

Case said that if Truman really wants to see the country's economy bolstered "he has shown a poor way of doing it."

Crash of Three Helicopters Under Probe

RED BLUFF, Calif. (AP)—Investigation continued today into the crash of three Army helicopters in blinding fog with death to six airmen. An Army officer said the pilots had no training or instruments to cope with fog.

The three helicopters slammed into a rocky hill 15 miles east of Red Bluff Saturday. There had been no collision.

Flying at 200 to 300 feet elevation, the copters encountered dense fog and clouds "before they had a choice to avoid it," Col. Frank C. Forest reported. He is in charge of the Army investigation.

"It is a distinct possibility that the pilots got vertigo and lost their sense of direction and speed," Forest said. "That's what happens when fliers are not trained to operate under conditions of fog or dense cloudiness."

"There were no blind flying instruments on the helicopters."

The copters were part of a flight of 21 being ferried from Ft. Riley, Kan., to Ft. Lewis, Wash. They are troop-carrying helicopters but had only crew members aboard at the time of the crashes.

Fronzizi Beats Ricardo Balbin For Presidency

Support of Banished Dictator Apparently Was Decisive Factor

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Gaunt, bespectacled Arturo Fronzizi, a left-wing intellectual, is the new president-elect of Argentina. The support of banished dictator Juan D. Peron apparently was a decisive factor in his landslide victory.

Fronzizi ran far ahead of middle-of-the-road Ricardo Balbin in Argentina's first free presidential election in more than a decade. Nine other opponents trailed way behind.

Both are attorneys and represent left and right wings of the Radical party—a conservative group despite its name. Balbin ran for president against Peron in 1952 and Fronzizi was No. 2 man on the ticket.

But Fronzizi's intransigent Radical party collected votes from many of the strong-arm segments of Argentina's political spectrum this time. His backers ranged from Communists to labor to Peronists and Fascist splinter parties.

With more than eight million Argentines voting, unofficial figures early today gave Fronzizi 2,617,454 votes, Balbin 1,446,146.

During his campaign Fronzizi pledged amnesty for all Peronists and that "includes everybody." But he never specifically included Peron, which raised speculation whether Fronzizi would let the banished dictator come back.

Sunday night Fronzizi said the first job of the new Congress would be to enact a general amnesty law covering all parties and including those now in jail for their politics.

From his refuge in the Dominican Republic, Peron hailed Fronzizi's victory as the result of the implied support he gave him. Peron said he would consider a return to his homeland, but planned a trip "to rest" first. He did not elaborate.

Peron claimed the election did not really represent the majority view because Peronists were banned from campaigning or running openly under their true colors.

"We Peronists... know what we want and march straight to its execution," the banished dictator said. "Each Peronist has his instructions and their leaders the directives to fulfill them."

Fronzizi courted the Peronists openly during the campaign. He professed surprise when the Communists withdrew their candidates and threw their support to him and denied ever having any "direct or indirect" contact with the Reds.

In his first postelection interview, Fronzizi said he welcomes foreign development of oil pipelines and refineries, but the government oil monopoly would continue to handle the exploration and drilling.

Elected vice president with Fronzizi was Alejandro Gomez, a school teacher and lawyer from Rosario, in Santa Fe province. Both are 49.

The Interior Ministry's vote count also showed Fronzizi's party was leading in congressional races over the country. The Senate is chosen by provincial legislatures.

Man Is Bound Over On Forgery Charge

Sheldon W. Dillon, 35, of Lexington, was bound over to the grand jury Saturday under $1,000 bond after pleading not guilty before Mayor Harold D. Smith to a forgery charge.

Dillon was charged with passing a forged check for $38.40, bearing the name of James Gurlea, at the Metzger Hotel Nov. 28. Gurlea is the owner of the Sand and Gravel Co. on the Egypt Road.

Dillon was arrested near Mansfield Tuesday and returned to Salem the same day. He was to be transferred to the Columbiana County jail today.

Expected to Spread to 15 Electric Companies in Seven States

Strike Hits Kyger Creek Power Plant

GALLIPOLIS, Ohio (AP)—A strike hit the big Kyger Creek power plant near here Sunday night and is expected to spread to 15 electric companies in seven states.

The companies have said that in event of a strike there will not be a power "blackout," that supervisory personnel will be able to maintain electric service.

But William R. Munger, national vice president of the striking Utility Workers Union of America (UWUA), said the union is gambling on supervisors being unable to handle the work load at Kyger Creek indefinitely.

He added, however, that the union realizes that supervisors can operate the plant for "a given number of days, with luck."

Presumably, the union is hoping the same situation will prevail if and when the strike spreads to the 15 companies which formed the Ohio Valley Electric Corp. (OVEC), operators of the Kyger Creek plant.

To Picket Installations
Munger said all main installations of the 15 sponsoring companies "definitely will be picketed."

He declined to say when such picketing will start, although adding that he knows exactly when. The companies operate in Ohio, Maryland, West Virginia, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Kentucky.

"It is unfortunate that we had to resort to this (the strike)," Munger said. "We recognize our responsibility and the seriousness of the situation, particularly since electric power is involved, but the position of the company left us no alternative."

Picket lines went up at the Kyger Creek plant shortly after 11 o'clock Sunday night. The plant is 15 miles north of here along the Ohio River, supplies power to the Atomic Energy Commission's uranium diffusion works in Pike County.

Say's "Everything's Lovely"
Munger said there were eight to 10 pickets at the plant. Asked if everything was peaceful, he replied, "everything's lovely."

James G. Cox, an OVEC administrative assistant, said about 35 workers left the night shift at 11 p. m. He said 35 others due on the job at midnight did not show up.

"The plant is being operated by supervisory personnel and they will continue to operate it," said Cox, who declined other comment.

Today, Gallia County Common Pleas Judge Robert M. Betz issued a temporary restraining order governing conduct of pickets and the union in general during the strike, the Associated Press learned.

The order was granted on petition of the OVEC. A hearing on the order was set by the judge for 10 a. m. Wednesday.

The seven-point injunction enjoins Local 430 of the UWUA from interfering with persons leaving or entering the plant, either through violence or threatening language.

It orders peaceful picketing and specifies that not more than four pickets shall be posted at any entrance to the plant.

Represents 9,000 Workers
The UWUA represents 193 workers at Kyger Creek and about 9,000 of the 15,000 union members employed by the 15 sponsoring companies, Munger said.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW), which like UWUA is affiliated with the AFL-CIO, has about 4,000 members working at the sponsoring companies, Munger said.

However, an IBEW spokesman in Cincinnati had said earlier that in event of a strike at the sponsoring companies has union members would not honor UWUA picket lines but would observe their contract.

Negotiations between the UWUA and OVEC broke off Friday night. Then Sunday Federal Mediator George H. Bell left the scene, saying the two sides were so far apart, there was no avenue open for negotiation of the differences.

Munger said the union wants a new one-year contract to include a 6 per cent wage boost amounting to a little more than 12 cents an hour on an average base rate of about $2 hourly. He said other demands are for improvements in vacations and shift differentials.

Cox said the company could not give an immediate wage hike, adding that it had given employees a 5 1/2 per cent increase last Sept. 1. But he said the company would agree to a contract clause for a wage reopener in the near future.

HOW TO RELIEVE YOUR TENSIONS AND BE HAPPIER

If anxieties and tensions are depriving you of the full pleasure of life, it's time for you to take stock of your present state of mind. There's no need to be frightened, since many people today suffer a little mental tension. But a little tension can often lead to more tension, and so on. That's why you should follow these suggestions:

- 1. TALK IT OUT! Confide your worries in some level-headed person you trust. You'll be amazed how different your problems look after you've talked them out.
- 2. ESCAPE FOR A WHILE! When things go wrong, sometimes it's best to lose yourself for a while, in a movie or a book. When you face your worries again, you may find them a lot easier to solve.
- 3. WORK OFF YOUR ANGER! "Blowing up" can't possibly answer your problem. When you reach your boiling point, work off your anger in a sport, or some project around the house.

These are just three of the many easy-to-follow suggestions which psychiatric experts have developed to help you get rid of your tensions and live a happier life. To find out more, write for the free booklet: "How To Deal With Your Tensions". Address: Better Mental Health, Box 2500, New York 1, New York.

TALKING THINGS OVER — President Gamal Abdel Nasser, left, of Egypt, and Sudanese Foreign Minister Mohamed Ahmed Mahgoub emerge after meeting in Cairo on dispute over border territories. The Sudanese government decided to present the dispute to the United Nations Security Council because of the situation created by the deadlocked talks in Cairo.

Sen. Knowland Endorses Nixon For Presidential Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Knowland of California has set his sights on the 1964—or possibly 1968—Republican presidential nomination.

Knowland, the Senate Republican leader who is running this year for governor of California, practically took himself out of the 1960 presidential contest with a conditional endorsement of Vice President Nixon.

"If I am elected governor of California I expect to serve out my term," he said in an interview. "I think Dick Nixon is likely to be the presidential nominee and I would support him."

Knowland made it clear, however, he is not foreclosing the possibility that he himself would become a candidate for the 1960 nomination if anything should happen to eliminate Nixon from the race.

The Republican leader said he had no intention of "Shermanizing" himself to the extent of saying he would not accept the nomination or would not serve if elected. He referred to the statement made after the Civil War by Gen. William T. Sherman.

Knowland's decision to wait it out beyond 1960 apparently is based on the belief that (1) Nixon now is far ahead in the contest for the nomination, (2) that 1960 might not be a good year for the Republicans and (3) that he is young enough at 49 to bide his time until 1964 or even 1968.

The Knowland strategy apparently takes into account the possibility that Nixon might be nominated and defeated in 1960 and thus open up the field for Knowland in 1964. If Nixon were elected in 1960 and again in 1965, Knowland still would be available in 1968 if he continued to hold the California governorship.

Q — If I have a heart checkup once a year is there any danger of having a coronary thrombosis between checkups?

A — Unfortunately, it is not usually possible to anticipate a coronary occlusion or heart attack. This does not mean that you should not have a heart checkup but an examination will not guarantee that you cannot have a coronary thrombosis. Our diagnostic measures are simply not good enough yet in this respect.

Q — Would you please say something about the effects of a hysterectomy on marital happiness.

A — Ordinarily, a hysterectomy involves removal of the womb only, leaving the other female organs in place. Following such an operation menstruation, of course, ceases, and conception is no longer possible, but marital happiness should not be unfavorably affected. Indeed, in many cases the removal of fear of undesired pregnancy often improves, rather than harms, the satisfaction from marital relations.

Q — For some time now my mother, who is over 90, has been troubled with dryness of the mouth. Is there anything which can be done to relieve her?

A — This is a common complaint of older people and is probably the result of lessened secretion from the salivary glands. The uncomfortable sensations which your mother has might be lessened by the frequent use of appropriate mouth washes, preferably obtained through her physician.

Here and There In Our Town

By DONNA AGAN

Gary Moffett, chairman of the Salem Heart Fund Drive, reported Saturday that almost $1,291.28 has been collected this month... donations are still coming in by mail and Mr. Moffett urges all individuals or organizations who have received letters requesting a contribution to donate as soon as possible... send your checks to HEART, Box 7 at the Post Office, or drop them off at the Farmers National Bank or First National Bank. The Salem Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the drive.

Mr. and Mrs. John Martin of 166 N. Union Ave. recently enjoyed a visit to the Caribbean Gardens in Naples, Fla.

MRS. PAUL MERCER, Dr. Harold Hoprich's nurse, and his secretary, Mrs. Robert Schaeffer, watched in amazement recently when they saw a green parakeet feeding with a flock of sparrows in the yard outside Dr. Hoprich's office at 690 E. Fourth St. ... they saw the parakeet three days in a row. Seems even more astounding when you consider that tropical birds are thought to be immediately attacked and killed by wild birds... Mrs. Mercer and Mrs. Schaeffer said as they watched the little parakeet huddling on the back steps of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Clay's apartment next door a sparrow picked up crumbs of bread and dropped them in front of the parakeet.

CONGRATULATIONS, to Salem High School art students Harry Izenor and Denise Duke for the awards they received during the recent Scholastic Art Exhibit in Akron... they are quite excited about their paintings being the first SHS art work to be sent to New York City. The art work of Margaret Evans, Carol Luce and Beverly Yates also received awards and was on exhibit last week at O'Neills in Akron.

Art work of other Salem students is being exhibited each week at the Salem Public Library... art teacher Anne Montgomery, and librarian Jim Hafer, are using the big display board down in the children's section to show the work of the grade school students.

The 'Blonde Angel'

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "Why am I struggling?" said Maria Schell, musingly. "Toward what am I running? What do I want so much?"

These questions today worry the 31-year-old Swiss-Viennese star, who is being acclaimed as perhaps the finest foreign actress to hit Hollywood since Greta Garbo.

She is like no ordinary movie star, and you sense this upon meeting her. She gives a feeling of fire under snow.

Maria is known as the "Blonde Angel" and, sometimes, as the "Blonde Demon." She has a peasant-lush body, horizon-blue eyes, and a face of startling innocence.

Equally startling is her firmness of purpose. She pursues her goal—perfection in acting—with a flaming zeal that makes easy-going performers who work with her feel a bit awed.

Miss Schell is not unaware of the danger that artists face who make almost a religion of their work—of being tagged as difficult or temperamental.

"The thing I am most afraid of is being misunderstood," she said. "Maybe it is my fault to be too intense. Some misunderstandings between myself and others may come from that."

Maria, who speaks five languages, left a convent at 15 and was acting at 16. She has made 21 films, including "The Last Bridge" and "Gervaise." In the first of five films she signed to do for M-G-M, "The Brothers Karamazov," she portrays Grushenka, the role once publicly coveted by another famous blonde, Marilyn Monroe.

Maria has thought a great deal about what she hopes for from this world besides fame and money.

"Love is the most beautiful daily work," she said. "Those who have never been in love must be very poor indeed."

"I have a feeling for the continuity of life. I think I would like to live to be old, very old. I feel that in my life the older I get the more it clarifies itself, from the standpoint of inner values."

"There are people who live in chaos and say that one must try every experience in life to know it. But I have a great desire to live a clear and orderly life. I do not feel you have to murder to play a murderer."

"I want to know harmony. I want to find peace within myself and the world in which I live. ... I am still too much affected by the way people react to my work. I would rather be purer, to grow, not by design, but as the flower grows."

"We have far too little time to live with art. Peace is art. Peace is when time doesn't matter as it passes by."

"That is what I want."

Cooks who like that added fillip of garlic can take a tip from French chefs. Don't peel the clove before pressing. You avoid a messy press this way. The clove residue lifts out easily. Merely wash press in hot suds.

Why the Young Men Went West

Donald G. Farrell says he is ready to go to the moon, having proved he could stand the journey by being the first volunteer to spend seven days in the Air Force capsule designed to simulate the ordeal.

We're with him, figuratively. We're with all the young men who are going to be space pioneers. In their imaginations, they already have recaptured something that escaped their fathers and mothers.

They are going to be first. They will be first to travel outside the earth's atmosphere, beyond its pull of gravity, first to touch the surface of the moon, first to know the answers to questions men have asked for aeons.

Once more, young men will know how things were when their ancestors saw for the first time what wonders lay on the other side of the mountains, across the uncharted seas and in the clearings beyond the wilderness.

Again, it will be their privilege — and their duty — to come back to the hearths and firesides with tales to compare with those of sailormen on the clipper ships and wagon drivers who cursed and prayed on the Oregon Trail.

Some, no doubt, will die trying. Not everyone will be a Columbus, a Magellan, nor even a Davy Crockett. But it always has been that way when young men went pioneering with plans and paraphernalia prepared by their elders.

Because it is the elders, after all, who know what stuff dreams are made on in this world — dreams that can come true if young men will believe in them. It takes the old to dream, the young to do — the old to plan, the young to pursue.

People who have no vision wonder why anyone wants to go to the moon and if the destination would be worth the journey. They are, by and large, people whose horizons have flattened out, which is to say they are people like most of us, who would not have sailed with Columbus, believed in the Wright brothers, or volunteered to spend seven days in a space capsule.

We must not forget why the young men went West. We will need to work extra hard to understand why young men now are ready to go to the moon. It is because they are young enough to spare the time for something that might fail.

No Useful Purpose To Be Served

It will be difficult outside the state of Illinois and the city of Chicago to whip up a strong opinion for or against the parole granted to Nathan Leopold.

The strong feelings of 1924, when Leopold and his friend Richard Loeb killed Bobby Franks for a thrill, have subsided in the nation as a whole.

There is no valid reason now why Leopold should be kept in prison any longer. At the age of 53, he undisputedly is capable of understanding his obligation to society.

No useful purpose would be served by prolonging his imprisonment. The only question is, therefore, whether any useful purpose would be served by turning him loose.

Two things could have happened to Leopold to make a parole after long imprisonment impossible. He and Loeb could have been sentenced to die for the murder of Bobby Franks and might well have been, had not Clarence Darrow successfully introduced to jurisprudence the concept of mercy for malefactors with disturbed minds. Or Leopold could have been executed unofficially by his prison-mates, as Loeb was.

However, he survived. By all accounts, including his own, he has tried to make himself a useful person and has had fair success. But one fact remains, and it will not go away.

Leopold and Loeb never would have escaped the electric chair in 1924 had it been known that one or both of them might live to draw a parole for a crime that put them beyond human mercy.

There was no useful purpose to be served by keeping the survivor in prison any longer; that is obvious. The parole board has conceded the point. Whether any useful purpose will be served by letting him leave prison is still a moot question. It will not be answered, unless Leopold, himself, can provide an answer by what he does with the rest of his life.

John L. Won, But Who Lost?

The Supreme Court ruling that gives any labor union the right to call for an election and certification by the National Labor Relations Board as bargaining agent if it wins, whether or not the union has complied with the Labor-Management Act, is being called advocacy for John L. Lewis.

If the president of United Mine Workers won, somebody must have lost. The loser would seem to be all the people who believe labor unions should be held as responsible for their acts as any other element of society in the United States. Compliance with the Labor-Management Act could not be called anything but the barest minimum of responsibility.

Unions are free from federal taxes. They are not required to make reports, to refrain from making false claims in their advertising, from entering into conspiracies with other unions and with employers in restraint of trade. They, themselves, do not always feel bound by some of the same labor legislation they inflict on others.

The only certification that employers and the public can rely on, therefore, is the knowledge that unions have met minimum requirements for being bargaining agents under the Labor-Management Act. Even these requirements have been scamped and neglected, as in the scandalous failure to check up on labor leaders who filed affidavits that they were not Communists when many of them were Communists in fact — and subsequently were expelled by the CIO for that explicit reason.

If even this slight protection can be removed, employers and the public have no more protection against a predatory union — tax-free, trust-free and slander-free — than a kitten cornered by a pack of cat-killing dogs.

It pays off sometimes to listen to a lot of people—you discover that your troubles just don't compare.

It's easy for a good disposition to give up these wintry days it's no match for a bad head cold.

Once Over

(Longfellow's Hiawatha is to be produced as a TV color spectacular, News item.)

Should you ask me whence these programs whence these legends and traditions, midst the curling smoke of wigwams, I should answer, I should tell you "From the field of pills and lotions, from the land of Batten Barton and tepees of Durstine-Osborn, where the sponsor and the ad men hunt the rating, dawn to midnight."

CHAPTER II

On the mountain of the prairie, Gitche Man ito, the mighty, stood erect for the time signal; smoked his calumet and waited. Came the tribes of all the nations, with their weapons and their feathers; painted like the leaves of autumn, saying, "Boys this is in COLOR. Now we bring a switch in westerns: For a change the Injun triumphs, with a fair break from the script-men."

CHAPTER III

For this hour not a raider, not a wagon-train ambusher, not a headache for Wells Fargo, not a background for Hugh O'Brian, crying "Children, my poor children, you have waited long for justice." Prayed he not for skill in battle, asking not for better hunting, pleading only for a break like TV gave to Rumpelstiltskin, and to Hansel, also Gretel!

CHAPTER IV

Came the laughing Minnehaha, stirring love in Hiawatha; but he could not get to first base in the torrent of commercials and the fury of the jingles. With a yell he drew his arrow, pinged the White Man in the gizzard, saying, "Brother YOU ASKED FOR IT."

By the shore of Gitche Gumees, by the shining Big Production, Hiawatha stood resplendent; gone was every trace of sorrow as he fled with Minnehaha to the quiet of the dairies, saying, "Farewell, TV programs. TW pearlies, saying, 'Farewell, TV programs. Lo the White Man he can have 'em.'"

They say that during his Atlantic City vacation, Secretary Dulles, while taking a ride in one of those boardwalk chairs, fastened his belt from force of habit.

Mr. Menshikov, new Soviet ambassador to the U.S., is so gracious and affable it is suspected he may be the first USSR envoy with a built-in defroster. He will appear for an interview on TV's "Youth Wants To Know," which strikes us as the height of courage. Those kids can ask the most embarrassing questions.

DESPITE TV, radio had its best year in history, with network time sales up 20 per cent. Does this indicate a feeling that commercials should be heard but not seen? When TV came in, radio was given up for dead in some quarters, or at least relegated to a place with the horse and buggy, the bustle and men's high shoes.

Many reasons for growth are being given, but we give the following:

1. The human ear can stand more than the eye.
2. On radio you don't have to monkey with the horizontal or lateral.
3. You can't see the actors suffer.
4. The commercials seem less irritating when the pitchmen aren't practically your house guests.

Blind Or Something?

The Big Farm Question

By PETER EDSON

Perennial arguments over farm price support levels come down eventually to questions of psychology and politics, as well as economics, which should be the determining factor.

The position of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson — for which he is taking an unmerciful drubbing — is that farm price support levels are too high.

It's hard to make any farmer believe the price he gets for anything is ever too high. But Sec. Benson believes high support prices are largely responsible for the eight billion dollars worth of surplus farm products the government now holds.

The present legal range of price supports is 75 to 90 per cent of parity. Parity, of course, is the ratio between the index of prices on things farmers sell — 247 — to the index of prices on things farmers buy, including taxes and wages — 301.

This ratio now stands at 82 per cent with 1910-1914 average prices being 100. The record high of 123 was in 1946.

On Cutting Costs

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Today's era of keener sales rivalry and sense of urgency in cost cutting is nudging trade groups into more productive meetings.

The U.S. Department of Commerce lists more than 2,000 national and more than 10,000 regional trade associations, and conventioning has become a national pastime.

The new look to the economy is shifting the accent away from just contacts, whether in a night club or on the golf course, and toward results in improving sales methods and gaining cost cutting tips.

While they don't say so, some association executives have seen attendance slipping along with business in general. Hotel keepers have noted this, too. Some corporate treasurers seem to think that one way to cut costs is to trim trips to conventions.

To counteract this, associations are turning to new ways to make the meetings produce better results.

The Association Institute of New York lists 50 types of meetings aimed at getting the most out of the convention goer. Associations trying them say they get results.

Room hopping is the device

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S farm message to Congress this year recommends that the government's guaranteed support price range be made 60 to 90 per cent of parity.

This would give Secretary Benson authority to lower price supports still further, if he deemed it necessary. Many farmers think he would do just that, and they object strenuously.

The argument in favor of lower price support levels is based on the theory that farmers are now overproducing most crops, just because the government guarantees them a too-high minimum price. If this is true, it would follow that lowering the price support levels would cause farmers to plan more cautiously. It would discourage them from overplanting.

But there is another side to this story. It presents the argument that overproduction is not caused by high support prices at all. On the contrary, it is argued that overproduction is caused by lowering government-guaranteed minimum prices below the 90 per cent of parity that prevailed in war times on most supported crops.

THE THEORY BEHIND THIS is that when support price levels are cut farmers tend to plant more acreage and harvest bigger crops. In this way they can keep their total dollar income steady, even though crop prices per bushel or per pound are lower.

If support prices had been kept high these people argue, the huge government surpluses would not have been created.

And if support price levels could again be raised to 90 per cent of parity, they argue that normal crops would again be raised and the government surpluses could be reduced to manageable size.

To be at all effective, of course, government-guaranteed minimum prices have to be coupled with some system of acreage allotments to cut down the total crop yield.

One trouble with the acreage allotment plan is that as farm efficiency and productivity have increased acreage allotments have had to be cut so small on many farms that they are uneconomical to operate. This is particularly true among small cotton farmers in the South. They can't produce enough of a crop, under reduced allotment, to make a living.

THIS IS ONE REASON why President Eisenhower recommends that the Secretary of Agriculture be granted authority to increase allotments on the basic crops — cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts and tobacco — 50 per cent above the legal formula.

In the meantime, there is pressure in Congress from wool growers and dairy farmers to give them some special relief ahead of any general farm legislation.

What Congress will eventually pass in this election year is anybody's guess. A catch-all farm bill to give a little something extra to everybody may run into a Presidential veto.

On the other hand the likelihood for Congressional acceptance of the Eisenhower-Benson reforms seems most remote.

A statement in which no new farm legislation will be passed seems as likely a prospect as any. That would mean holding price supports and acreage allotments at present levels for another year at least.

SIDE GLANCES

Heyday of Hearsay

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Innocent Persons Unjustly Accused

They seem to be intent here on making a martyr out of the late Sen. McCarthy. For never in the heyday of his anti-Communist crusade through congressional committee procedures did he indulge in the amount of hearsay stuff, innuendo and "guilt by association" which a characterterized the hearings currently being held by the congressional subcommittee now investigating the affairs of the Federal Communications Commission.

Someone writes a letter to some one else saying it might be a good idea to contact a senator or a presidential assistant or the office staff of the vice president to get some influence brought to bear on the subject of the grant of a TV license. Someone else says he hears through a friend that another friend heard that maybe some relative of the President by marriage may have been importuned to help to exert influence.

Promptly the headlines are filled with the innuendoes and the public is led to believe there is "guilt by association."

Few on the so-called "liberal" side — not even the various civil liberties organizations which are zealous defenders of individual rights when persons are seemingly accused unjustly of association with Communist "fronts" — are clamoring for a fair and orderly way of conducting the congressional hearing in question.

It's just too bad that the persons involved in the TV-license controversy were not accused of some sort of Communist connection.

They would have had lots of defenders. The speedmaking would have been loud and long on the subject of the violation of personal liberties and the Bill of Rights.

TO TAKE REFUGE in an aphorism of the days of the McCarthy controversy, it isn't the "objective" of the House Committee's current investigation which is to be criticized but only the "Methods" used.

Certainly every corrupt influence should be exposed. Certainly this is the job of a congressional committee in the public interest.

Certainly the members of the Federal Communications Commission should not be subjected to pressure by anyone — either inside or outside of Congress. But there is a right way and a wrong way to expose the improprieties whereby such pressure is exerted.

The right way, when stumbling on a name mentioned in a letter or in an executive session hearing, is to get hold of the person involved and get his side so it can be simultaneously presented to the public for what it's worth.

Instead, there has been a lapse of several days between the time of the disclosure of some alleged connection or improper pressure and the establishment of the exact facts. The "leaking" to the press of staff memoranda prepared for a congressional committee has become a favorite device by which innocent persons are crucified.

IF OFFICIALS are to be held up to the public as charged with some wrongdoing, they should have an opportunity to confront those who make the charges and even to cross-examine them through counsel.

This is supposed to have been the net result of the debate which arose in connection with the hearings conducted by the late senator from Wisconsin.

But somehow, although there has been on the part of the general public an acceptance of the wisdom of such reforms, there is little sign that Congress itself has paid much attention to them.

Every wrong allegedly committed in the McCarthy hearings has been committed over again in recent hearings but with even less basis for the charges than in the controversy over Communist activities and associations.

If it is wrong for senators to visit members of an independent commission and to plead for their constituents, there is no law on the statute books and no rule of either house that says so.

If a lawyer hired by an interested party can argue with a commissioner about a pending case, then a senator can, too, and so can a presidential assistant or anybody else — provided the commissioners themselves do not adopt a rule or code declining to permit such contacts, which they really should do.

THERE IS, of course, a "conflict of interest" problem that has not yet been cleared up. Should a commissioner who is financially obligated to an attorney disqualify himself from the case or refuse to see the attorney?

This is a matter of propriety. It does not mean that the commissioner is unable to deal with a case honestly on its merits. But judges on the bench have often disqualified themselves if they had any financial relationship with a client or his representatives.

Had the current inquiry been confined to a clarification of this point and of the doubtful right of senators and House members to discuss pending cases with members of independent commissions, it would have been a constructive thing. But to allow names to be bandied about in the press, without any more basis than has been uncovered thus far, is to put innocent persons unjustly on the defensive in the court of public opinion.

New York Herald Tribune

Political Clubhouse

By JAMES MARLOW

That's the picture of the Federal Communications Commission emerging from an investigation of the government's big regulatory agencies by the House subcommittee on Legislative Oversight.

The subcommittee is still far from getting down to the bottom of its investigation. So far — and it's been only skimming the surface.

Right now the subcommittee is trying to find out what happened when the FCC—which licenses radio and TV stations and awards channels worth millions — approved a TV channel for a station in Miami.

The FCC awarded the channel to a subsidiary of National Airlines. There were three other applicants. But only one of those three so far, A. Frank Katzentine who owns a Miami radio station, has figured in the investigation.

The story unfolded by witnesses before the subcommittee is one of attempts to bring pressure to bear on the FCC—including pressure by politicians—to get the TV channel.

But the FCC is supposed to be a nonpolitical body, with the seven commissioners practically in the aloof position of judges, making impartial decisions on the merits of a case and for the public benefit.

The disclosures so bothered Rep. Wolverton (R-N.J.), one of the subcommittee members, that he complained the widespread use of outside pressure is "so strikingly wrong that it shocks me and I am sure it shocks anyone else with any knowledge of morality."

Wolverton said Katzentine had at least 15 persons contact FCC members on behalf of his application. One of them, as it turned out, was Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.).

In a letter introduced at the hearing Katzentine was quoted as asking Kefauver's help because he feared "politics" might keep him from getting the channel. In a reply Kefauver said he had talked with three FCC commissioners.

After this disclosure Kefauver said he simply wanted to see Katzentine treated fairly and "all I ever asked anyone to do was decide the matter on its merits."

Another letter said Vice President Nixon was the "right man" to approach on behalf of Katzentine. But no evidence so far shows

Nixon did anything to help. Nixon has declined to comment.

Bernard Schwartz, fired by the subcommittee as its chief counsel has alleged that FCC Commissioner Richard Mack, also of Miami, received money from a lawyer who, Schwartz said, represented the airlines subsidiary which won the channel from the FCC.

Mack has called Schwartz's charges "distortions." They have been denied also by the lawyer, Thurman A. Whiteside, who said he loaned Mack money many times, but had not been employed by the airline subsidiary.

A Miami judge, Robert A. Anderson, testified that before he became judge, and while he was still counsel for the airlines "I don't think I did—I may have" asked Whiteside to contact Mack.

But the National Airlines president G. T. Baker, in a letter to the subcommittee, said Whiteside was "never retained in any capacity" by the airline or its subsidiary which got the channel.

Household Hints

A washable plastic seat cover for the car is a good investment when there are many little children in the family. Sticky fingers and dusty feet leave many impressions on a car interior. Washable covers take a sudsy cloth to wipe away smudges.

Little floor mats in front of the kitchen sink offer a free ride to many a housewife. Favored by many, they actually are unnecessary and hazardous. A skid while carrying cold water may not be serious, unless a hard fall results. But think what might happen if a housewife slips while handling hot foods or hot water.

'Stop-Light Sermons' Flash Proverbs to Passing Motorists

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The door of opportunity is opened by pushing.

Take life as you find it, but don't leave it so.

Beaten paths are for beaten men.

So go the "Stop-Light Sermons" posted weekly by a bard of the church billboard, the Rev. Dale H. Conrad, pastor of Crescent Heights Methodist Church.

They flash their messages to motorists passing the busy corner of Fairfax and Fountain avenues. Newspaper columnists frequently quote them.

A Hollywood songwritter was so taken with "The train on the railroad to heaven carries no baggage cars" that he asked the clergyman for permission to write such a song.

The Rev. Mr. Conrad switched several years ago from straight announcements of sermon titles.

"I started thinking of a sermon out there for all the people who never would step in the door of a church," he said Friday.

"They had to be short and say something—I just sort of went on from there."

Other pithy proverbs he has posted — some original, some culled from his reading, some from parishioners:

Is there any dust on your Bible? Your day goes the way the corners of your mouth turn.

If your religion costs little it is worth little.

If you are too busy to pray, you are too busy.

A man is known by the company he keeps out of.

A man wrapped up in himself makes a pretty small parcel.

A fool's tongue is always long enough to cut his throat.

Faith keeps the man who keeps the faith.

A Bible in the hand is worth two on the shelf.

A lot of kneeling keeps you in good standing with God.

The Christ we will not share we cannot keep.

An ounce of church is worth a pound of police court.

The sermon on the Mount will lift you out of the valley.

One motorist wrote the pastor.

"I started to apply your sayings in my life for the week they were up. It's worked wonders for me."

One woman calls him to criticize however if the message isn't cheerful or mentions the devil, as in:

leeping saints serve Satan.

The Rev. Mr. Conrad said his own favorite is this sign he posted last June after getting a call from a hospital:

It's a boy!!!

John Carroll Wraps Up Presidents' Conference Laurels

Miami, Boasting 10-0 Streak, To Take On Marshall Quintet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (U) — Ohio's collegiate teams wheel into the final week of the cage campaign today, with only one of four conference championships decided.

John Carroll wrapped up the Presidents' Conference laurels Saturday night with a 5-0 record by defeating Western Reserve 67-50. But the Ohio, Mid-Ohio and Mid-American crowns depend on this week's finales.

Miami, seeking the Mid-American title and an NCAA tourney bid, has the easier chore. The Redskins, boasting a 10-0 streak, can take it all by beating second-place Marshall (3-2) Wednesday night, or if Toledo upsets the Huntington Herd tonight. A win over Kent State Friday also would put the Redskins on top, even if they lose to Marshall.

Findlay and Wilmington look like good bets to deadlock for the Mid-Ohio. The Oilers (9-1) need victories over Bluffton (4-6) Tuesday and Defiance (7-4) Saturday, to assure a deadlock. Wilmington (10-1) has only Cedarville (2-8) to get by Thursday to assure a tie.

Probably everything hinges on Wittenberg's invasion of Akron Saturday in the torrid Ohio Conference race. The Lutherans (13-0) and Zippers (10-0) have swept all opposition aside this year in the 14-school cideut, and the climactic tilt could decide the title. "Could," because Akron still has to get by Kenyon (1-11) Wednesday night.

Akron hasn't lost on its home court this year, and Wittenberg hasn't lost at Springfield—so the home floor advantage could sway the verdict when they meet.

For the season Akron has a 17-5 record and Wittenberg 17-2. In conference play Akron has a 79.1 scoring average against Wittenberg's 73.4. But the Lutherans have a better defensive mark, 49.3 to 53.9. It could be quite a scrap.

Cincinnati, pacing the Missouri Valley race with an 11-1 record to Bradley's 9-2—and second-ranked nationally—could clinch the crown and an NCAA tourney bid this week by winning over St. Louis Wednesday and Wichita Saturday. Dayton's surprising Flyers, with a neat 21-2 record, have accepted an NIT bid and will tune up against Loyola of New Orleans Thursday and Toledo Saturday.

Twenty of the 47-games still on the Buckeye slate—42 this week—are against out-of-state foes. Last week the Buckeye clubs lost 10 of 17 interstate frays, their poorest showing of the season, but they still have 186 victories against 117 losses in such competition for the season. The Ohioans have outscored the outsiders 22,379 to 21,023.

Oscar Robertson, Cincinnati's scintillating sophomore, goes into this week's play practically tied for the national scoring championship. The tall kid from Indianapolis is averaging 33.72 for 22 games, just a notch off the 33.76 for 21 games with which Seattle's Elgin Baylor leads the pack.

Cincinnati moved to within one-half game of third-place Detroit in the Western section. The Royals broke the game open by outscoring Minneapolis 33 to 15 in the third period. Clyde Lovellette of Cincinnati topped the scorers with 25 points.

Dolph Schayes clicked for 30 points as the Nationals whipped St. Louis. Bob Pettit was high for the Hawks with 21.

Canadiens Tally 3-3 Tie With Red Wings

By The Associated Press
The Montreal Canadiens are within one point of winning the National Hockey League title, but a paid of weekend ties cost them a chance to clinch the championship at the earliest date in league history.

The 1955-56 Canadiens captured the crown on Feb. 25. That season they beat the Detroit Red Wings by 24 points.

Montreal tied the second-place New York Rangers 2-2 Saturday night and had to settle for a 3-3 deadlock with the third-place Detroit Red Wings Sunday night. The Canadiens can back into the title if the Rangers tie or lose to Chicago on Wednesday. Or they can win the diadem outright with a tie or victory at the expense of Toronto Thursday.

The Rangers increased their second-place advantage over Detroit to three points with a 4-2 victory over the Maple Leafs and Harry Lumley posted his third shutout as the Boston Bruins blanked the Chicago Black Hawks 2-0 in Sunday's other games.

LEADS IN TENNIS RACE

FORT WORTH, Tex. (U) — Lew Hoad and Pancho Gonzales moved to Dallas today with Hoad holding a 16-8 margin in their race for the world professional tennis championship now held by Gonzales.

The rookie pro from Australia, Sunday broke Pancho's service twice, once in each set, in winning 6-4, 7-5 before 2,650 fans.

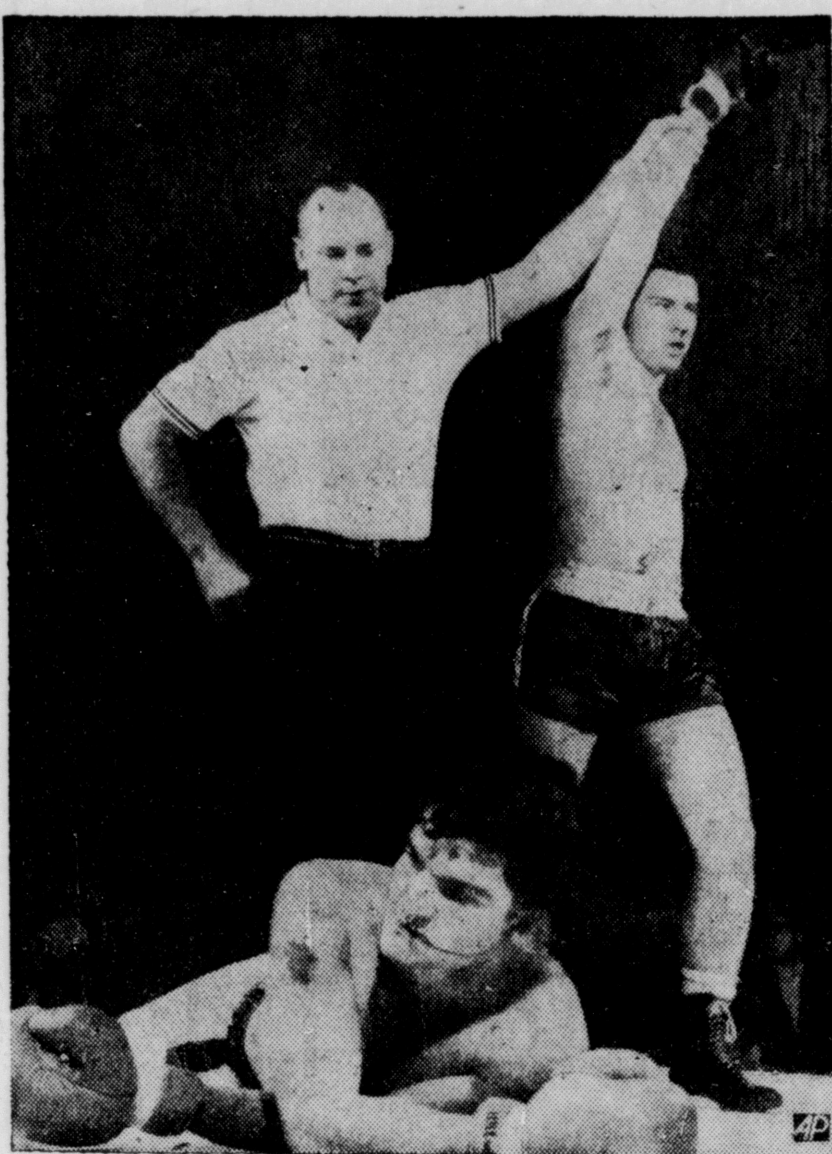

So if Rozsavolgyi is going to lower Gunnar Nielsen's record, he'll have to do it this week and alone. He leaves for home after his next effort to begin training for the European championships this summer.

Saturday night in the National AAU championships, he ran the mile in 4:05.5 in pushing Delany to a 4:03.7 effort.

The meet produced only one world record. That was in the 35-pound weight throw in which Bob Backus of the New York Athletic Club, which won the team title, got off a heave of 65 feet 4 1/2 inches, eclipsing his own mark of 64-2 1/2.

Other winners included: Parry O'Brien of Palm Springs, Calif., in the shotput 61-14 and Greg Bell of Indiana in the broad jump 25-6 1/2.

Rozsavolgyi will go in a special

THE WINNAH—Chattanooga's Harry Russell stares dazed and bleeding as referee Pete Rademacher gives the victory sign for Charles Lawler of Upper Cumberland, Tenn., team in a first round heavyweight Golden Gloves tournament bout in Nashville. Rademacher, Olympic heavyweight boxing king, is a referee in the Southern Golden Gloves Tourney in Nashville.

Kaline Determined to Defeat Annual Soreness in Right Arm

LAKELAND, Fla. (U) — Al Kaline has been subjecting his right arm to all kinds of rigid activities this winter in the hope that prolonged strenuous exercise will be the answer.

Kaline has been a conspicuous member of the Tiger cast since the opening of the rookie training school nearly two weeks ago. He has been working as hard as any of the eager youngsters, showing no signs of favoring the protesting appendages of his body.

"I've tried about everything else," explained the young man who reported to the club less than five years ago with a high school diploma in one hand and a $35,000 bonus in the other. "Nothing worked. I had a couple of teeth extracted two years ago in the mistaken belief that bad teeth was the cause."

"Last spring I put as little strain as possible on the arm and shoulder. I did no playing to speak of in the exhibition games. That didn't help either."

"So I decided to give it the works this year. I exercised every chance I got. I worked out almost daily in a gymnasium back in Detroit and threw quite a bit. Right now I believe the arm feels stronger than at any time since 1955 but I really won't know for sure until we begin playing games."

Batting champion of the American League at the age of 20, with an average of .340 in 1955, Kaline dropped to .314 the following year. That figure might have been much higher had he been able to swing freely early in the season when his average hovered around .270.

It was even worse last spring. By the end of July he had accumulated only six home runs, compared to 27 for each of the previous two seasons.

"The soreness didn't leave me until well into the summer," said Kaline. "It wasn't until August that I began to hit in my true stride."

Kaline hit 12 homers in August. The surge carried the Tigers into third place. His batting average finally climbed to .295.

Spartans to Face Boilermakers

Tennessee Tech Five To Play Murray State

By The Associated Press
The Big Ten basketball race, which has been scrambled all season, could be all but settled to-night—or it could revert back to a four-way dogfight.

It depends on how the Purdue-Michigan State game turns out. A victory for the Spartans, and they can start making plans for the NCAA postseason tournament.

If Purdue (which hasn't won the league title since 1940) comes out on top, it's a new race between the Boilermakers, Michigan State, Indiana and Iowa.

The Big Ten isn't the only conference with important business on the agenda for tonight.

The little Ohio Valley Conference race could be settled. All Tennessee Tech has to do is lick Murray State and it gets an automatic ticket to the NCAA tourney.

If Kansas wants to maintain any hope at all (and it's practically nil) of overtaking Kansas State in the Big Eight, the Jayhawks must get by Iowa State.

California, the favorite, can pull a game and a half in front in the Pacific Coast Conference by taking care of Oregon. Oregon State is the only team with a chance of overtaking the Bears.

In the Atlantic Coast, Duke can clinch at least a tie by beating Virginia tomorrow night. The Blue Devils have their big date Friday night when they play North Carolina, the defending league and NCAA champions.

Cincinnati, in its first year in the Missouri Valley, needs only one triumph in its two games this week—against St. Louis Wednesday and Wichita Saturday—to clinch a tie. Bradley still is hoping, but its a faint hope.

Miami of Ohio also needs one victory in its two games of the week and it can do no worse than tie for the Mid-American. Dick Strider's lads should have no trouble with Marshall Wednesday and Kent State Friday.

San Francisco, of course, is a certainty to win the West Coast while Temple (Mid - Atlantic), Connecticut (Yankee), Kentucky (Southeastern) and Idaho State (Rocky Mountain) already are in the NCAA Tournament. Five at large teams—Oklahoma State, Notre Dame, Pitt, Manhattan and Boston College—also have been selected.

As for the National Invitation Tournament, half of the 12-team field has been determined. St. Bonaventure, Niagara, Dayton, St. Peter's (N.J.), Fordham and St. John's are in.

The NIT also is interested in Seattle with Elgin Baylor, the nation's leading scorer. Baylor, incidentally, is just a shade ahead of Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson in the race for the scoring championship with an average of 33.76 to Robbie's 33.72.

Kelly Coleman of Kentucky Wesleyan is No. 5 in the nation with a 600 point output for a 26.1 game average. Notre Dame's Tom Hawkins, who led the Irish to weekend victories over New York University and Navy in an Eastern invasion, has a 25.3 average for the No. 9 spot.

Demarel Leads Final Round at Houston

HOUSTON (U) — Jimmy Demarel, a bad weather golfer with fancy clothes, led the $30,000 Houston Classic Golf Invitational into its final round today while trying for his first hometown victory since 1940.

The 47-year-old Demarel thrived on mud and water puddles Sunday in grabbing the lead on the back nine of a delayed third round, while Pete Mazur, the halfway mark leader from Buffalo, N.Y., was getting off too many hook shots from the tees.

Demarel's 70-70-69-209 left him two strokes ahead of Marty Furgol, the 1951 Houston winner from Lemont, Ill., and Roberto de Vicenz, the long-driving Argentine from Mexico City. Mazur placed a 77 beside earlier rounds of 68 and 71 for a 216 that was seven strokes off the pace but even par for 54 holes over the 7,200-yard, par-72 Memorial Park course.

Home Minus Air Conditioning May Someday Be Hard to Sell

Within a few years, the average American family will refuse to buy a house without air conditioning as quickly as they would reject one without a bathroom today.

This is a conclusion reached by more than 60 leading builders, bankers, government officials, and industrialists in a recent round table discussion on the future of air conditioning.

Chief reason for this bright promise in the future of home comfort, the officials agreed, is lower costs possible today through proper design, construction, and orientation of a house.

Secondly, it was agreed, research has shown that air conditioning does more than keep a house cool on summer days. In an air-conditioned home, children and adults eat and sleep better, family dispositions are better, laundry and cleaning bills are smaller, because of the filtered air, and even doctor bills are fewer, thanks to the more healthful atmosphere.

Participants in the round table discussion which included representatives of the Federal Housing Administration, top executives of the National Association of Home Builders and a number of leading researchers in the field of home comfort — agreed that costs of both the installation of air-conditioning equipment and its day-to-day operation can be reduced to well within the price range of the average home buyer if homes are built with:

1. Roofs that are light in color to reflect heat, pitched enough to allow good ventilation between roof and ceiling, and with wide overhangs to shade walls.

2. Sufficient insulation to provide a maximum barrier to the average home buyer if homes are penetration of heat. Current recommendations, based on research in the Air Conditioned Village, Austin, Tex., are 6 inches of mineral wool in ceilings and at least 3 inches in walls.

The research showed that mineral wool used in these thicknesses makes smaller air-conditioning units satisfactory and reduces operating costs by as much as half. Mineral wool also contributes to fuel consumption by as much as 40 per cent.

3. Careful orientation of the house on its site to keep the summer sun off large glass areas during the hottest part of the day.

The round table participants agreed that in a properly designed house, the net monthly cost of cooling would be so small that it could be disregarded by lenders in fixing the income required to buy a house.

This operating cost — estimated by one authority at less on the average than $132 per year — would actually be offset by savings in cleaning, laundry and doctor bills, and in lower automobile and entertainment costs as a result of more desire to stay home in comfortable surroundings.

'Pie Wedge' Summer Cabin Easy to Build

Here's a wintertime game that will pay you big dividends. Why not plan your do-it-yourself summer cabin during the long winter evenings.

A San Francisco architect has come up with an amazingly simple design which almost anyone can build who is the least bit handy with hammer, saw and square.

The cabin looks like a huge pie wedge pointed upward. It can be built in any size, but one with a floor 30 by 18 feet can be built for not much over $1,000.

The frame is made of a series of triangular trusses of 2x6 Douglas fir which form an 18-foot triangle and eliminate the problem of studs and cross bracing. These triangular trusses can be pre-cut and bolted together at the top in holes previously drilled. They should be spaced four feet apart so you can make your summer cabin as deep as you care to in four-foot sections.

Windows can be fitted into the four-foot spacing between the framing members and on the same slope. Shiplap can be applied snugly to the frame and then shingles or shakes laid over them to make a warm wall-roof.

The floor should be 2x6 fir porch flooring laid over solid fir frames of 2x10 or 2x12 size. The floor can be extended out from the front of the cabin to make a patio deck. The back of the home can be sided in convention air, hemlock or cedar siding and the front facing the patio deck can be all glass, if desired. Heating is a simple problem.

Isn't this a simple design? Such a cabin can be built at the seashore, in the mountains, on a small acreage, or even in the city. The design is striking in appearance and the cabin can be built in three or four days. Wiring and plumbing should be installed by experts.

BIG FAVORITE

Of all the new and remodeled kitchens installed in U.S. homes last year, 79 per cent used wood, according to the West Coast Lumbermen's Association. Of this total, 63 per cent were carpenter of home built and 16 per cent factory built. One of the popular woods gaining favor is tough, durable west coast hemlock, noted for its natural golden beige color.

Children's rooms often show the battle scars of an indoor winter siege. One way to avoid this next winter is to use rubber tile or rubber sheeting at the strategic levels. The material resists scuffs and dirt and works well both on walls and floors.

Inside Labor By Victor Riesel

There is a Philadelphian who boasted to his friends that he could fix anything in the city except the crack in the Liberty Bell — and stopped short there because no union could strike it.

In this tale I was going to refer to the shadow figure as Mr. X so that no one would prejudice him before the McClellan committee escorts him up to that big reserved seat and its counsellor, Bob Kennedy, peppers him with questions. They will show Mr. X to be a sort of laborite Nate Shefferman, doing for some unions what Shefferman did for some businessmen.

But calling a man Mr. X is too corny these literary days. So, we'll refer to the man now being probed by the McClellan committee as Mr. B.L. — since this story pivots upon the City of Brotherly Love and many of its good people who were terrorized by unions, some of which have already been exposed by the Senate committee.

The impact of the saga of Mr. B.L. is in his being one of the new types of Mr. Bigs. It is the story of a man who becomes one of the landed gentry because he can — or could — fix any labor trouble. This is not unusual.

IN 50 CITIES there are such individuals, or small combines, appearing whenever there is trouble. He, or they, are the men you go to, or who come to you and advise that it would be cheaper to settle than to fight — and he is just the fellow to bring everybody into line.

Mr. B.L. proves that the business of labor-management relations is nothing that can be studied in the colleges or law schools.

He proves that scores of what seemingly are legitimate labor-management tussles, the settlements of which are supposed to be approved by the rank- and- file membership, are really fixed wrestling matches. The deal is set by two or three men.

Mr. B.L. started, modestly enough, working as a trouble-shooter for a handful of Philadelphia unions, including the Teamsters, from which he was dumped.

Among other chores, he ran a highly profitable "labor" journal, as heavy with ads as the heavy hands of his solicitors could make it before deadline.

The ads, of course, were from businessmen who thought — not by free association — that they would do well not to antagonize such a close friend of such a powerful band of union chiefs.

ONE OF AMERICA'S crusading labor leaders, who knows Mr. B.L.'s work, talked of him the other day in this manner:

"B.L. knew them all. The unions went to him whenever they had a problem and he made the right connections. He was the fixer — the big time fixer. He worked all sides. Everytime there was a tough situation B.L. was in the picture — and this included some mighty big strikes."

Not too long ago, Mr. B.L. decided that with his connections he could do better in real estate — and he did.

He now has considerable holdings in the Philadelphia area and moves in circles which know little of his fixing days. He is, in fact, a member of one of the most highly respected private dining clubs in the city.

But it will be some time before he gets back to his haunts. In fact, he may never get to the McClellan committee witness stand, at that. He is not in this country.

LABOR CIRCLES hear he is, like all fine gentlemen, traveling in Europe. The other set hears he is in Canada. However, he is really in the lush Caribbean area.

He has been out of the country for a year now. Word is that he will not return until the McClellan committee has hung up its shield. All of which may take another session of Congress. But B.L.'s activities will be reported from the witness stand whether he returns or not.

Like Shefferman, Mr. B.L.'s influence ranges out of his home city. Labor chiefs in New York, Chicago, and, of course, Detroit, were only as far away as his telephone. Difference is that Mr. B.L.'s clients were labor men and unions — not businessmen trying to avoid unionism.

B.L.'s story will come as a shock to those who have known him as just an investor and real estate man.

If it doesn't stir the rank-and-file unions be given back to them, we might as well burn the witness chair.

Hundreds Attend 'Day of Prayer' Services Here

World Day of Prayer, sponsored by the Salem District Council of Church Women, was observed here Friday in four separate services. Hundreds of persons attended.

At each service the theme, "The Bread of Life," was depicted in an altar arrangement including a sheaf of wheat, a loaf of bread and a lighted globe map of the world.

The opening service in the First Friends Church at 10 a.m. was attended by 150. Mrs. Ernest Recker of Cleveland, guest speaker, used the theme as her subject. Members of the Friends Church provided the organ prelude, a vocal solo, and a vocal trio.

The Winona Methodists were in charge of the call to worship and responsive readings followed by the congregation singing the hymn, "Guide Me O Thou Great Jehovah."

Members of the Church of the Nazarene conducted the meditation service, and the Methodist women had charge of the intercession. The presentation of projects and the offering and prayer of dedication were followed by the hymn, "Bless Ye The Tie That Binds." Wesleyan Methodists pronounced the benediction.

The noon service attended by 180 was held in the Emmanuel Lutheran Church with women of the Presbyterian Church in charge of the service in the sanctuary, while members of the Emmanuel Church served luncheon in the social rooms.

Trinity Lutheran Church members conducted a service at the Home For Aged Women at 2 p.m. for the 15 residents there.

The children of local churches held their program at 4 p.m. in the First Christian Church, with 100 in attendance.

Participating churches were Salvation Army, Church of the Nazarene, Trinity Lutheran, Emmanuel Lutheran, Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, A.M.E. ion and the Christian Church, which furnished the choir.
